Today's smart working employees have overcome the psychological boundaries of the four-walled archaic office settings. The modern workforce can work either from home, from the client's premises, while traveling or from remote locations, and without going by the traditional 9-5 working hours. The global work community has seen a transitional phase where flexibility to work is not a luxury anymore. It is a basic requirement for the timely completion of business projects. However, to ensure the trust between employers and tech-savvy employees never breaks, and no party plays foul to take advantage of the provided flexibility, it is important to have a perfect monitoring system in place. Proper planning, well-defined policies, clearly written compensation programs, and seamless technology for attendance management is required to keep employees motivated and regular at work. Therefore, employees motivated and regular at work progress of their teams. attendance tracking software is a perfect tool to meet all goals for attendance management and reporting. What is Attendance management is a set of strategic actions and initiatives companies take to deal with employee's unnotified absences, leaves, and irregular attendance. The goal of the attendance management plan is to ensure that employees are consistent in their attendance policy: A clearly written and implemented attendance policy that describes all rules and regulations that employees need to follow regarding their job attendance. Attendance Monitoring: A system to track, monitor, and report the attendance pattern of employees. Absenteeism management program: A strategic absenteeism management program to tackle both unavoidable and avoidable avoidable and avoidable and avoidable avoidable and avoidable avoidab regularly. Employees who are aware of the benefits that they can avail of if they regularly come to work, apply less for leaves. For instance, if there is a policy to encash non-availed leaves, employees will refrain from taking avoidable leaves. For instance, if there is a policy to encash non-availed leaves, employees will refrain from taking avoidable leaves. Absenteeism: Irregular attendance, prolonged leaves, and frequent Absenteeism cause companies to lose a great deal in project completion. Work quality deteriorates, teamwork suffers, and productivity decreases due to low attendance. Unethical practices: Unethical practices such as proxy attendance and buddy punching are perennial issues for the HR department. Unable to access real-time information: Inability to process information in real-time, and get detailed reports and analysis is a major challenge that employees accountable: Without efficient attendance management, companies cannot come up with a standard protocol to hold employees accountable for work losses, undue liberties with time, poor attendance sheets, come with the risk of human errors. Errors in attendance sheets can cost companies dearly. Manual tracking of errors leads to more wastage of employee hours. Meeting compliance and avoiding labor issues: Employers find it challenging to record accurate attendance for meeting regulatory needs and labor standards. Inaccurate attendance for meeting regulatory needs and labor standards. the daily attendance of the employee of an organization is called attendance tracking software. It is a set of powerful application tools for tracking employee attendance, leaves, working hours, vacations, holidays, and more. It comes with payroll integration. The software is used by all small, medium, and large-scale organizations. Below are the elements of the attendance tracking system: Why choose open source Attendance tracking software? The benefit of an open source attendance tracking software is: There is no lock-in with a vendor. Once you buy the license and deploy the system on your system, it's entirely yours. So, you are not dependent on the vendor for future support and upgrades. You don't need to pay a monthly or yearly subscription fee. Also, you don't need to depend on the software vendor to fix issues, and you can use the source code to modify the system as per your needs. Another benefit is that they are cheaper than the web-based system. Apart from the free and open source attendance management software, large organizations that need to save a bulk amount of data can go for cloud-based attendance tracking Software? 1. Protection from employee time theft Due to time theft, there are unnoticeable losses that occur to the company in terms of project delay and making pay-outs for unproductive staff-hours. The attendance tracking software enables efficient management of employee attendance, schedules, and current projects and reduces the risk of time theft. Companies can analyze the work patterns of an employee who fails to meet up the deadline. 2. Compliance to labor laws and adherence to company policies Failure to company policies may lead to legal violations for any company. It can incur huge costs, loss of reputation, time, and efforts. The attendance management system comes with seamless integration of data management and analytics with the policies. It prevents companies from avoidable lawsuits. The software calculates the payments done as per the work hours along with the exact number of employees hired for the projects and keeps well-documented records in case legal suits are filed. 3. Cost-Efficient Adapting the traditional methods for attendance management may lead to various additional costs on work operations like time taken in job hour calculations, paper costs, register costs, etc. Free attendance management software serves to create customized reports that can be accessed in real-time. Companies can take benefit of the accumulated data to track and improvise the performance of their employees. It gives companies a fair idea about the actual employment days and related factors, such as production and points out any productivity leakage due to irregular attendance issues. 5. Empowers Remote Work Tracing An efficient attendance tracking software tool can enable the company to check the attendance of any remotely working from home. 6. Streamlines the payroll system The manual methods of employee payment calculations can be erroneous tedious, ineffective, and time-consuming. The automated computerized system ensures the accuracy and authenticity of the attendance results. The attendance results. The attendance tracking software renders huge support to the HR payroll team for employee pay calculations by keeping track of absences, leaves, late arrivals, etc. It has an automated system of compensation calculations that keeps track of employees' leaves- both used and pending. 7. Keeps track of employee work progress of each employee to managers. It also serves as a tool to the employee to track their own work progress leading to timely completion. 8. Avoids paper usage In the absence of the attendance software, you need to physically store documents of each employee such as timesheets, expense reports, and punch cards. This leads to heavy usage of paper. Businesses now look forward to going green and saving office space and time for the HR team. The attendance tracking software stores the entire information of the employees into the local servers or cloud-based software database. It can be easily accessed through computers or any wireless device. 9. Manage attendance for on-field employees with multiple locations The attendance management system helps corporate businesses to manage employee attendance for employees that work on fields. For example, attendance tracking software is crucial for companies whose employees go to multiple locations. Attendance tracking software is crucial for companies whose employees go to multiple locations. Attendance tracking software is crucial for companies whose employees go to multiple locations. login to mark their attendance. The GPS integration ensures that the employees may come up with challenges at work or on the personal front. It may prompt them to commit time-theft and procrastinate work. Employees may resort to unethical methods slackness in activities, and irregular attendance. As a result, work gets hampered to a great extent and takes a huge toll on the project completion goals. Employers can't track the real-time data of jobs done by every employee manually. With the help of the attendance tracking software, most of these difficulties come to an end. With accurate data on-demand reports, and exact attendance percentage in hand, companies can hold the defaulters responsible with proper documentation. Comparison of the Attendance management system with other standalone systems: 1. Excel sheets vs. Attendance management software: Managing employee attendance databases with manual systems such as excel spreadsheets is a time-consuming and out-dated approach. There are limitations in excel sheets to retrieve data in multiple-forms. It also cannot be fully integrated with other HRMS tools. Excel Sheets have to be filled by people and, therefore, prone to human errors. Moreover, spreadsheets cannot be automated to record, compile, and verify the attendance management system. As soon as an employee logs into the system, the attendance management software automatically records attendance software can record and track attendance software can record and track attendance by other methods. 3. Manual Registers vs. Attendance management software: Manual registers are poor attendance entry methods and prone to the input of false information and register theft. Also, there may be an altercation between the person handling the register and employees over the wrong entries. There are other issues too. Employees can enter their attendance in another employee's place by mistake. Attendance software comes with a unique ID and password, and therefore no one can wrongly put attendance tracking software?
